The purpose of the scholarship is to encourage doctoral work focusing on women's cancers, particularly women's diverse experiences.

Doctoral work can be in Sociology, Anthropology, Psychology or related fields (e.g. Ethnic Studies, Women's and Gender Studies, etc.).

Eligibility

The candidate must identify as a woman with a feminist orientation who is sensitive to studying women's cancers and their impact on diverse groups of women, including those of diverse racial and ethnic backgrounds, socioeconomic status, sexual orientation, language, religion, geographical areas, or other cultural perspectives.

The candidate must have an approved prospectus for doctoral research.

The topic should be useful academically and also have pragmatic and practical applications, such as informing and empowering women, demystifying the disease, and/or having implications for the cancer epidemic more broadly.

The scholarship is intended for researchers who plan to present their findings and applications to lay audiences and social scientists.
